“This land is so happy , so delightful, so fortunate that obviously it is Nature’s favourite. This revitalizing air, the eternally clear skies, the fertile land, the sunny hills, the dark forests, the mountains lost among the clouds, the abundance of vineyards and vines...and so many lakes, the copious running waters and springs, so much sea and so many ports! A land open to all sides to commerce and which, as if to encourage man, extends its arms out into the sea.”

Pliny the Elder , 1 century B.C.
